Afternoon KSA

Asthma Knowledge Self-Assessment

Looking for a low-cost, time-efficient way to enhance your clinical knowledge, earn continuing medical education credits and gain American Board of Family Medicine certification points? Take advantage of Knowledge Self-Assessment (KSA) study groups. KSAs are focused on evaluating and enhancing your knowledge in a particular topic area common to family medicine.

Each family physician facilitated-KSA is approved for 8 CME credits and 10 ABFM certification points. Over the course of the session, you will take part in group discussions of 60 questions on a given topic and answers are submitted as a group by the MAFP. Following successful completion of the questions, MAFP will report your earned credits to AAFP. AAFP will then report your credits and certification points to ABFM on your behalf.

The Asthma ABFM-developed KSA activity focuses on understanding and identifying the pathogenesis of asthma, diagnosing asthma, managing chronic asthma, recognizing, and managing co-morbidities of asthma, managing exercise-induced asthma, and recognizing and managing complications of asthma therapy.

Presenters include Drs. Lee Greer, Emily Landrum, and John Mitchell.
